I choose AAA

Alaska is famous for its diverse and abundant wildlife, easily viewed in natural habitats on land and at sea. Now you can take advantage of an opportunity to travel to the Great Land with animal experts from the Hawk Creek Wildlife Center, one of New York state's leading education and wildlife rehabilitation facilities.

You will see what makes Alaska such an extraordinary destination for wildlife enthusiasts on this 12-day exclusive cruise tour from AAA and Hawk Creek. A donation from your journey will benefit the educational programs and rehabilitation efforts at the East Aurora center.

Loretta Jones

Founder and Executive Director of Hawk Creek Wildlife Center, she received her Bachelor's of Science from the University of Connecticut, served on the board of The New York River Otter Project, Inc, received a conservation award from the International Association Of Trainers and Educators, and has been a guest naturalist for Princess Cruise Lines. She was filmed for PBS and National Geographic, and appearances as a guest on the Rachel Ray Show and Conan O'Brien. Loretta has attended and taught many classes at the Tom Brown Tracker School in New Jersey. She recently worked to help save the endangered Houbara bustard in the Middle East. Her current focus is to build a sanctuary specially for bald eagles at Hawk Creek. An increase in their returning populations has led to an increase in non-releasable Eagles. This sanctuary will provide a lasting home for those birds. From humble beginnings of rehabilitating birds with her children, her passion and resolve have made the Center one of the largest outreach facilities in New York State.

Hawk Creek Wildlife Center

Founded in 1987 as a rehabilitation center by Loretta Jones. In 1991, Hawk Creek became a certified 501-C3, giving it its non-profit status. In 1999 Hawk Creek became the 41st TAOS accredited sanctuary. Today, the Center is one of the largest outreach facilities in New York State. The Center rehabilitates over 400 animals annually, offers sanctuary to over 85 non-releasable wild animals, presents more than 2,500 educational programs reaching 250,000 people, while breeding and releasing rare birds into the wild. Through environmental education programs, Hawk Creek strives to nurture in children a lifelong commitment to preserve our planet. Hawk Creek has garnered national and international recognition; presenting programs in several states, including New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Hawk Creek offers internship programs that have places participates employment at Animal Kingdom, Busch gardens, Denver Zoo, Buffalo Zoo, & National Wildlife Parks in Alaska, to name a few.
